Mrs. Garmung Calls Lawyer "Beelzebub"

PAINTED WHITS AT COUNSEL

Declares Attorney for Clubman in $250,000 Suit for Heart Balm Had Called Her Names

Bangor, Me., April 7.—Beelzebub was introduced in the trial of Leona Garmung's $250,000 breach of promise suit against John Brooks Henderson, Jr., here today.

Miss Garmung brought Beelzebub into the case, Attorney L. E. Deasy, counsel for Henderson, had just risen to begin his cross-examination.

"Miss Garmung," he began, "you, Beelzebub, the witness recall, though so few have heard the judge and the stenographer heard her. Judge Bird said so."

"Miss Garmung, I must warn you now that a repetition of that offense will be summarily dealt with."

"Well," Miss Garmung rejoined, "I called her names."

"You needn't reply to me," Judge Bird cut in. "If you offend again I shall certainly subject you to the same treatment I would give any other offender. I warn you now to be exceedingly cautious."

Her cross-examination began, and she "couldn't remember" a manly bludge in the first few minutes that John H. Merrill of Bangor testified to the bench and made some remark to Judge Bird in an undertone.

"The suggestion," said the judge loudly, "must just as well have been made publicly as privately."

Then the judge announced a ten-minute recess, and when the cross-examination was resumed, the defendant answered more readily.

In regard to whether the "Beelzebub" remark should stand the court said: "Well, Mr. Deasy, what do you say?" The remark was addressed to John H. Merrill.

Mr. Deasy—I do not ask to have it stricken out.

Then the judge considered the matter for a minute or two before he said: "I think I'll let the record stand as it is."

Mr. Fulton—Very well, Your Honor. The court isn't satisfied with it, is it?

The court—It isn't a question of whether it satisfies me or not.

British Transport Is Sunk by a Submarine

By International News Service. London, April 7.—The Peninsular and Oriental liner Simla has been sunk in the Mediterranean with the loss of eleven members of her crew. All were Asiatics. The other members were saved.

The Simla was taken over by the government last November for transport purposes.

Two dispatches were received by the Daily Mail, one reporting that a "large transport" had been sunk off the west coast of Greece; the other saying that "the British steamship Simla is reported to have been torpedoed in the Mediterranean off the Greek coast."

It is evident that both referred to the same ship.

The French coast steamer St. Hubert, 216 tons, has been torpedoed by a German submarine. The crew was rescued. The St. Hubert was unarmed, and, according to the unofficial reports, was not warned.

U. S. WILL STAY IN MEXICO

Troops Not to Be Withdrawn Until—Bandit Is Captured or Killed, Says President Wilson

By L. V. B. RUCKER. International News Service Staff Correspondent. San Antonio, Texas, April 7.—Major-General Foxton today received a dispatch from Governor Guadalupe of the state of Chihuahua announcing that Carrancista soldiers were engaged in battle with Villistas on Tuesday morning and that five of Villista were killed and two captured.

The fight took place at Chihuahua ranch, a few miles southwest of Saltillo. There were 200 Carrancista soldiers under General Foxton against 800 Villistas.

The telegram was transmitted through Morion Letcher, United States consul at Chihuahua City.

Washington, April 7.—United States troops will stay in Mexico until Villa is captured or killed.

This was made plain by President Wilson today at a Cabinet meeting at which the border situation was thoroughly discussed.

The President, it is said, made it clear beyond all question of doubt, that he is not leaving the American troops in Mexico until they had accomplished the object for which they crossed the line—the capture or death of the bandit Villa.

Proctor, another high official source, gave the same information. The announcement was made unofficially and was taken as an answer to the reports that General Carranza was to send for the withdrawal of American troops from Mexican territory.

This official pointed out that the object of the expedition was to "get Villa, dead or alive," and that the United States was not going to quit the job until it was done.

While Washington was discussing this phase of the Mexican situation word came from El Paso today of reports there that Villa had selected a new headquarters. He was waiting there with 2,000 of his followers to give battle to the United States troops engaged in his pursuit.

The force which 21 Pancho Villa had joined Villa since his defection from the San Germano ranch and after his capture had been recently released there by the Seventh Cavalry. The job was done.

MAU SEIZES PUPIL OF 15 AND ATTEMPTS TO CHOK OFF HER CRIES: POLICE HUNT ASSAILANT

Citizens of Lynn were aroused today as the result of an attack by a man on a fifteen-year-old girl in the washroom of St. Mary's Parochial School.

Details of police officers searched the city for the child's assailant, a partial description of whom was secured, and there was talk of organizing posses of citizens to assist in the hunt.

The little girl, whose name the police refuse to make public, is under the care of a physician at her home. On her throat were finger marks, her back was scratched, and her clothing soaked with her own blood.

The attack took place shortly before noon. The washroom is in a one-story building located in the rear of the school, and reached by a connecting subway or by an entrance from the yard.

The police believe that the assailant entered through the yard entrance and concealed himself in the building. When the girl went to the washroom, the man sprang from his place of concealment and seized her, she struggled, but he took her by the throat and attempted to choke her.

The child was given treatment at the school and then removed to her home. The police were notified, and immediately began a hunt for the man, who is believed to be in Lynn.

3 HELD IN WAR ON VICE

Rev. J. Washington Hill of South End, and Cambridge Druggists, Lapp Brothers, Are Accused

A South End clergyman and two Cambridge druggists surrendered themselves in Cambridge today and were held for trial in $2,000 each on secret indictments returned by the Middlesex Grand Jury, charging them with conspiring to violate the narcotic drug law.

Others are to be arrested as a result of a vigilance which the A. H. E. C. is conducting against the narcotic well with refusal to print advertisements intended as a check for the sale of habit-forming drugs.

The three men, who surrendered, were held today are:

The Rev. J. Washington Hill, thirty-nine years old, a native of New York, who was arrested at his home at No. 213 Columbia avenue, Boston. He is married and has five children.

Samuel Lapp, twenty-nine years of age, No. 1337 Commonwealth avenue, Milton, proprietor of a drug store at Harvard and Portland streets, Cambridge. He is married.

Frank Lapp, nineteen years, single, No. 21 Spring street, Boston, clerk for his brother, Samuel Lapp.

Captain Herbert Gordon of the Cambridge police, who handled the drug investigation for District Attorney William J. Casper, of Middlesex, said today that the three men were seized on February 11, that 225 prescriptions calling for large doses of morphine sulphate were found in the eastern front.

MORSE-MADE CLOTHES (UNION-MADE)

BACK in 1852, when the Leopold B Morse Company, makers of "Morse-Made" Clothes, first began to make men's clothes, one idea prevailed—MERIT

And to this day MERIT is the arbitrary standard against which all garments bearing the Morse label must be measured before they are allowed to leave the Morse shops.

With the experience of 64 years of practical, conscientious and thorough effort behind them, "Morse-Made" Clothes of today tower high in quality above any other ready-for-wear clothing in the field.

From the point of Value, of Style and of Dependability, stitch for stitch, we do not believe we have ever been able to offer the men of this city a better money's worth in clothing than the "Morse-Made" Clothes for Spring 1916.

Besides the "Refinement" shown here, we have a striking assortment of other attractive men's and young men's "Academy" models in handsome new Spring fabrics.

We would like to have you come in today and see our well selected assortment of "Morse-Made" Clothes, even if for no other reason than to see what good clothes really are.

HAPPENINGS IN BOSTON SOCIETY

Miss Sarah Sherburne, daughter of Beacon street, whose debut occurred Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sherburne of last Winter, is to be one of the Chinese "men" in the Vincent Club show next month.

Five other girls, four of whom also came out last season, will take part in the show with Miss Sherburne, and the group is expected to prove one of the notable hits of the show.

At Miss Sherburne's recent coming-out party many of the season's bids assisted. The debutante herself is one of the most popular of this year's group. Miss Sherburne, with her parents, recently returned from a trip to Europe.

LIEBERT GIRLS ARE GETTING 52 TRUNKS

By International News Service.
New York, April 7.—One hundred and fifty-two trunks belonging to the Liebert girls of Boston, who are now in the French Consulate-General to the United States, are arriving at the Hotel MacJannet. The trunks were scattered and missing when Mr. Liebert's family arrived here from Hong Kong, China, where he represented his government before the transfer to the United States. The girls required the fifty-two trunks to hold the belongings of the Lieberts, of Boston, Lieberts, new Misses Lieberts and Alice Liebert.

586 Spring Suits @ Topcoats

In a campaign of Value-Giving that will demonstrate to the men of Boston and New England what Bigness of Vision—Bigness in Merchandising and Bigness in Purchasing Power can accomplish

Here's the story on these Suits and Topcoats—without any frills or the overworking of tired adjectives. We have owned the fabrics from which these Suits and Topcoats are made for quite a while, having purchased at a price which permits us to sell these garments now at many dollars under what we would have to charge had we not jumped into the market and bought ahead of time. Included in the sale are several patterns of cheerful Homespuns (greatly in demand and very scarce) and many patterns of Worsteds. Tailored and finished throughout in a manner which we are proud to offer and stand back of. Any man is getting generous, full-to-over-flowing measure at the very special price of

AND MARK THIS POINT WELL—All the Topcoats are Precisely Cravenetted. Does not make a Coat last longer, but DOES make it look better, and it's Rainproof.

Dress Up!

This is the time when Nature puts off the old and dons the new. This sale is your opportunity to catch step with the spirit of the season. FALL IN!

Dress Up!

The SUITS

Four shades of Gray Worsteds, one of Brown Worsteds. Not the harsh, wiry kind, but soft, pleasing fabrics. Also seven patterns of Brecky Homespuns.

Fitted models, more conservative models, and Modified Norfolk, eight models in all. Two and Three-Button single-breasted coats. Skeleton, 1/2 and 3/4 lined, with good quality Mohair. Vests with or without collar. All the "style-kinks" are splendidly in evidence.

The TOPCOATS

All the Coats are of Homespuns. Cheerful! And all are Cravenetted.

All smart, free-swinging models, with a choice of regular or raglan shoulder.

Convertible or regular collar; slash, patch or regular pockets; silk and satin yoke and sleeve lined.

All single-breasted styles in five models. Smart, snappy Coats that will please the most critical.

YOUR Suit—or Topcoat—or both—are here. Better drop in today. Values like these are scarce these days. You'll echo that last statement just as soon as you see and examine these garments. READY!

Rabbit New Lead-Off Stallings Wants Speed

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

BALTIMORE, April 7.—Two games in the International League spot, and the Braves will have overcome the last obstacle on their journey north and be all ready to take the road to the championship season with a grand smash in Brooklyn Wednesday afternoon.

The team that expects to land another national league flag arrived here from Washington at 5 o'clock last night, and before retiring the players gave the residents of the city somewhat of a treat by parading up and down Pennsylvania avenue for a while.

Having won Neph, Knetzer, Rudolph and Tyler in the two-game series spot, the Braves will now face the

Myra Gets a Letter Commending Her Old Rejected Story

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XVII

MYRA WIGHT'S hand trembled as she saw the letter. It was a letter from the editor of the "Imperial Magazine" and it was a letter of commendation.

"Dear madam," it ran "We are more than usually interested in your story—'Bitter Waters'—which you have submitted to us, and would like to talk with you about it. Can you make it convenient to call and see the writer very soon?"

The committal letter was signed Perry Martin, Editor.

"More than usually interested!" The woman repeated the words until they seemed to hold any meaning for her. This magazine was well known and popular, yet she felt that she was not interested in it.

She could not help but feel that she was not interested in it. She could not help but feel that she was not interested in it. She could not help but feel that she was not interested in it.

Lux is so pure, so mild, so gentle, it does not injure the faintest fabrics.

THE MODERN SOAP PRODUCT

Not a soap powder—not a chipped soap—not a cake—but pure essence of soap in flakes!

For fine laundering, you should never rub soap directly on a delicate article. For this purpose try Lux. It is the modern form of soap—not a soap powder—not a chipped soap—not a cake, but fine, transparent flakes of pure essence of soap.

Why Lux is so good for fine laundering The Lux flakes dissolve instantly in hot water, making a rich, creamy lather in a moment, and so completely soluble are they, that not a particle of the soap is left in the garment to yellow it. And you don't have to do the slightest rubbing to get the dirt out.

Think what it means to you to have at last found something which will launder your most delicate garments—even fine laces! Lux won't harm anything that pure water alone will not injure.

Try Lux just once!

Order a package and make it a point to have it tested on some of your finest articles—lace curtains! rich table linen! your sheerest blouse! Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Only Those Win Success Who Pay the Full Price

Dorothy Dix Says Too Many Want to Dance Without Settling with the Fiddler—Persons Dependent in Old Age Generally Have Only Their Own Extravagances to Blame

By Dorothy Dix

THE great trouble with the world is that all of us want to dance without paying the fiddler.

We want success without having to work for it. We want to get rich without having to save. We want to eat and drink without getting dyspepsia. We want love without the burden of responsibility.

And because for everything we get good or bad, there is a fixed price, for which we have to pay cash down, we fill the air with our wishes and lamentations.

There isn't one of us who is a failure, or an invalid, or a pauper, or friendless and unloved, who isn't in that condition because he or she tried to cheat in the game of life, and to get something for nothing.

Why does a man succeed? Because he is willing to pay the price of success. It is work, work, work, endless toil, it is plodding patience that never wearies. It is the concentration of every thought, every desire, every aspiration to some one particular end. It is self-denial and self-sacrifice.

That is the price of success, and any man and any woman who is willing to pay it can have it. But you can't buy it with a little intellectual spasmodic effort now and then. You can't buy it by looking on your job, or working with one eye on the clock, or taking more real heart interest in your amusements than you do in your career.

abstemiousness in eating and drinking. Yet because it tastes good we gorge ourselves on rich food that we know will give us indigestion; we drink alcohol that we know is a poison to our system; we sit around in stuffy rooms and grow fat and heavy because we hate to exercise. Nine-tenths of the sickness from which we suffer we bring upon ourselves just because we are not willing to pay the price of keeping well.

The whole of the divorce evil is caused by people trying to evade paying the just debts of family life. A man and woman get married because they want domestic affection, because they want a home, because they want children.

They get these, but they begrudge the price. The man wants the faithful love of a wife who will stick to him through thick and thin, who will work by his side when he is poor, who will nurse him when he is sick, who is as unchanging as the North star, but at the same time he wants to be free to carry on flirtations with younger and prettier women.

He wants a home that he can come to when he is tired or down and out, but he doesn't want to have to come to it if some lively amusement offers. He wants the arms of little children about his neck, but he wants to spend the money it costs to support them on his own dissipation.

Price of Happy Domesticity Is Immolation of Self on Altar of Home

A woman wants a husband to support her and stand beside her and the world, but she doesn't want to have to consider his pleasures nor desires. She wants a home, but she doesn't want to have to work in it to make it comfortable and thrifty. She wants children, but she doesn't want to have to stay at home from bridge parties and dances to take care of them, and keep them from running wild.

Now the price of domesticity is self-sacrifice and devotion; it is mutual consideration and forbearance; it is the putting of the good of others before your own pleasure; it is the immolation of self on the altar of family and home, and it is because so few men and women are willing to pay this price that there is so much domestic misery in the world.

This one thing is certain—there are no bargains in life. Everything that is worth having is costly, and the price tag was written at the beginning, and it has never changed. Success, fame, riches, friendship, family life—we must pay for them in blood and sweat if we get them. Something for something, and nothing for nothing—that is the inexorable law of life.

The first steam engine in which steam was used to drive the pumps was that of Watt in 1769.

Does a Boston Opera Audience MERELY ENDURE the Singing of Our "Star Spangled Banner?"

ONE Parker, theatrical critic for the Boston Transcript, delivered himself of some extraordinary comments on the opera of Monday evening last. This person declared with considerable heat his disgust that the opening should be cheapened by the rendering of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the orchestra and Geraldine Farrar, as a prelude to the opera. This extraordinary American, if, indeed, he is an American, said disgustfully that the orchestra played our national hymn poorly and Miss Farrar sang it imperfectly while the audience arose and PATIENTLY endured it as Signor Gatti-Casazza, the Italian director of the opera company, smiled ironically. This "critic" declared that such a prelude was worthy an opera in Fort Worth or in some frontier town, but that it was entirely too provincial for Boston.

If the audience was obliged to exercise patience in order to endure the singing of our national hymn by one of our greatest American singers, it is all the worse for the kind of people who attend our operas. If the singing of a national hymn by a great singer and its playing by a great orchestra is worthy of opera in Fort Worth, but not in Boston—all the worse for Boston. If the singing of our national hymn under any circumstances is a matter for the exhibition of ironical mirth by any foreign gentleman connected with the opera—very much the worse for him and for his welcome here.

But the truth is that this critic, who perhaps wears a monocle and "struts and stares an a" that, grossly shames the audience, the opera company, the city of Boston and Signor Gatti-Casazza.

A responsible American newspaper ought not to allow even a writer so insignificant to publish such stuff unedited.

The Irrepressible Truth About Brandeis

SENATOR WORKS of California is a member of the committee which heard those opposing the confirmation of Louis D. Brandeis for the United States Supreme Court. Senator Works made an elaborate argument against Mr. Brandeis, but in the course of that argument the irrepressible truth welled out of his mouth, in these words:

"It is evident that while Mr. Brandeis has many enemies among business men and lawyers who do not believe in him, he has many friends among the poor and lowly and those who are working to better their condition."

There was a certain great man whose life revolutionized the western world, born about 1916 years ago, who had the same kind of enemies and the same kind of friends that Senator Works declares are the enemies and friends of Mr. Brandeis. The good book says that that poor people "heard him gladly," and we know the class of people who crucified him.

The Pharisees have not changed in character or in their pernicious aims in their hatred of just men during the last 1900 years.

Mr. Brandeis will probably be appointed in spite of the opposition of these Pharisees. But he could probably save the people later in the course of private life, where he could go on being a "crusader."

A Great Lesson That the Pilgrims Taught

AT a meeting of the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants on Tuesday evening Rev. Frederick B. Allen suggested that at the coming celebration of the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, statements should be issued and distributed to the schools of the country, setting forth the characteristics of the Pilgrims in order that the children may be impressed with "THE SPIRIT OF RELIGIOUS TOLERATION, THE DEMOCRACY, THE HONEST INTEGRITY, TRUTHFULNESS AND FAITH IN GOD OF THE PILGRIMS."

This is a very pertinent suggestion at this moment. There are too many people in Massachusetts who think that they have inherited everything the Pilgrims left, but who really have not received from the Pilgrims the most precious heritage of all, which is the right to decent treatment from those who differ from you in religious faith.

Governor McCall Is Right on Capital Punishment

THE day is coming in this State when we shall acknowledge that Governor McCall was right when he advocated the abolition of capital punishment.

This great question, which goes to the deepest seat of our conscience, is one of the most important matters to be considered by the coming Constitutional Convention. In the meantime, the Governor's advocacy of the abolition of legal killing does credit to his heart and head.

Doubting Thomas

By William F. Kirk

OLD Tom Griggs did not believe anything he hadn't seen. Not one thrill could he receive. From a book or magazine. When the weekly paper came, telling of a fire or wreck, "Don't believe it," he'd exclaim, "Don't see it first, by heck!"

Stated on the elder "liat": At the corner grocery store, liver ready for a quarrel. Tom would air his worldly lore. But if some good neighbor spoke Of a wondrous plum or squash, Tom would roll his eyes and croak: "Got to see it first, by gosh!"

All his life he was the same. Always ready with a "No." When his final summons came, And the doctor told him so, Old Tom Griggs just shook his head At their talk of faith and trust. "Maybe that's a devil," he said, "But I got to see him first!"

The Fear of Poison

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects

PART TWO

A SINGLE glance at the mortality lists or table of causes of death assures us at once that if we all remained upon this earth until we died by poison, whether intentional or accidental, 99.9 per cent. of us would live to be as old as Methuselah, and older.

Deaths by poisoning accounts for barely one and one-half deaths out of each thousand, or less than one-hundredth of all deaths.

Not So Consoling However, these broad and average statements, though reassuring in the main and in the abstract, are not quite so comforting personally for the reason that we may happen to be just the one person out of seven hundred on whom is to fall the honor of proving the exception to the rule of the 99.9 per cent. harmlessness of poison.

The question has just recently been brought home to us very vividly by the horrible and disgusting attempt at wholesale murder by putting arsenic in the soup of the guests at the Archduke's banquet in Chicago, and the distressing tragedy of love's perils at Lake Forest, where prussic acid is supposed to have been given or taken as the fatal draft.

What is the reason for the singularly small amount of actual damage wrought by the quite considerable number of common and fairly active poisons?

The first reason is that, although there are a great number of variety of substances which, if taken in sufficient amounts or through considerable lengths of time, would produce injurious results in the human system, the actual number of poisons found in a state of nature sufficiently strong or concentrated to be swiftly dangerous to life if swallowed is surprisingly small.

We could almost count them upon the fingers of our two hands—opium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate (hydrochloric of mercury), belladonna, prussic acid, strychnine (fox vomit), carbolic acid, oxalic acid, lead, phosphorus, acetic. This all complete the roll of the really strong and dangerous poisons.

A Murderous Traffic This is the most remarkable because there is no manner of question that poisons were highly prized and eagerly sought after in the olden, blood-thirsty days of the past, which are not entirely over yet, as recent events in Blandford have shown, and anything which would swiftly and surely put your enemy off his trail or of the way would bring its weight in gold.

In fact, the tremendous share of the income of the magicians and astrologers and necromancers and medicine men of earlier times was derived from a lively and lucrative traffic in poisons, for both family and foreign use.

In fact, the fact which has been given represents the rather accumulations of all past ages and the taking of every clime and latitude. Opium from Turkey and the Near East, arsenic from China, strychnine from tropical Africa, corrosive sublimate from Arabia, and so on. And most of even this small amount of real, "sure enough" poisons have to be collected and extracted from the ores or the juices of the plants in which they are found, and usually more or less concentrated before they are swiftly deadly in small amounts.

One would have to chew up several poppy heads, for instance, in order to get enough opium for a dangerous dose.

Furthermore, scarcely one of these, except occasionally lead, occurs either naturally or accidentally in our food or drink, so that our main danger of poisoning by them consists almost solely in picking up the wrong bottle or pill box or in some other way taking a deadly dose of medicine instead of a harmless one.
